RON, J. AMBLER SMITH. This gentleman is known to be a true and onest-hearted Republican, but his course to ter that it has disgruntled the "left centre," or pinor division of the party. The "right centre" to be a candidate, who can cope successfully with the opposition. It is well known here, by every one but his rivals, that if nominated he can and will rally to the support of true Republicanism large numbers of Conservatives who are heartily sick of the chicanery and louble-dealing of their own party, and who will gladly avail themselves of the present disorganization to range themselves under the banner of "Liberty and Union." Two great causes are at work to bring about the discomfiture and DISINTEGRATION OF THE DEMOCRATIC Conservative party. First and foremost is the supposed defection of Governor Kemper. It is feared and believed by many of his politiletter that will bring peace to many a troubled eart or confirm the worst fears of his friends. The other cause which so seriously threatens he integrity of the Conservative party is the vide-spread dissatisfaction at the late action of

KILLED BY LIGHTNING-REMARKABLE

FAIRPAX COUNTY, VA., 1 SUNDAY EVENING, June 28, 1874 The spacious audience-room of the Southern Methodist church at Falls Church was thronged this morning, not only by citizens of that village but from neighboring hamlets and farms, to attend the funeral obsequies of the Rev. Mr. shreeve and wife, who were killed by lightning last Thursday evening some hundreds of unites south of this place. The remains were brought up by the cars in metallic coffins yesterday, and taken to the residence of Mr. Shreeve's father and grandfather, near Falls Church. The scene in the church was most impressive, and the remarks of the Rev. Mr. Ball and of Rev. Mr. Crenshaw, the paster of the church-one a near relative and the other an intimate friend of their deceased brother-were of the most touching character. The deceased seem to have been most estimable persons, and to have had the love of all who knew them; and the closing words of Mr. Ball, aimost stiffed by his own emotions-"they were lovely in their lives, and in their death they were not ivided"—met a response in the moistened eyes of all who heard him. There are circumstances of a remarkable character in the death of these young persons, and also of romantic interest in their wedded life. Wounded while a soldier in the Confederate army, near Petersburg, Mr. Shreeve met with the young girl, to whom, as soon as the war was over, he was married. For six years he was a devoted and successful preacher of the Southern Methodist Church, and last Sabbath preached with even more than usual real and fervor, as if possessed by presentiment that he was uttering his last words for his Master

On the afternoon of Thursday he returned to his home with his wife from a visit to a neighbor, but before the evening meal aat down with his family, for their evening devotions, in front of a window. The younger chighren, however, were soon sent to an adjoining from with the servant, for the sake of quiet, and only Mr. Shreeve, his wife, his brother and their eldest child, a daughter, remained. There had been observed a gathering of clouds, followed by a few drops of rain and the muttering of thunder, when suddenly came a flash, and the four inmates of the room, who were just about prostrating themselves in prayer to God, were prostrated on the floor, two of them to breathe no more, and one who received some burns afterwards, but has not yet entirely recovered, and seems to have now no knowledge whatever of the event. The little girl was alone unharmed, and from her is derived all that is known of the sad occurrence.

An extraordinary fact of a scientific character is related in connection with this event. A pane of glass in the window was completely perforated in two places by the lightning, and glass has always been held to be a perfect nonconductor of electricity and impenetrable by it.

That thunder storm of Thursday, 25th inst., seems to had a very broad range, and to have sen unusually fatal in its effects. It seems to have extended all over this section, and Turn REPUBLICAN reports that the lightning struck a man at Circleville, Ohio, a woman at Hunington, West Virginia, two young men at Kalamooza, Michigan, the postmister at Marion, Indiana, and three persons at Fort Wayne,
